Romanesque Architecture

1. The Duomo of Pisa 1063-1182. The tower 1173-1350: eclectic with its Byzantine mosaic, pointed Islamic arch, ancient Roman colonnade, and other elements not visible here. The dome is an addition from a later period. There are 68 Corinthian columns inside and a wooden ceiling.
2. San Francesco at Assisi 1228-1253; upper church 1232-1236. The basilica was built at the birth place of St. Francis (1182-1266). Generally categorized as Gothic because it carries Gothic elements, the basilica of St. Francis nevertheless carries a more Romanesque aura.
